WHAT IS OPEN ACCESS?

Open Access is the free, immediate, online access for any online user. It is digital, scholarly material published in peer-reviewed journals.

HOW CAN I USE MY ARTICLE IF IT IS OPEN ACCESS?

Certain reuses can be limited depending on the type of license your article is published under.

To learn more about license types, and how they influence your reuses please see the corresponding chart to the left or visit the following link: <https://creativecommons.org/licenses/>

Before reusing your article in a new source, please consult your Copyright Transfer Agreement (CTA) or the journal's terms of use. Lippincott permits authors to deposit the final peer-reviewed manuscript (not the published version or proof) on the following platforms after a 12-month embargo from the article's publication date: <ul style="list-style-type: none">Personal websiteUniversity's institutional repositoryEmployer's intranet Requirements: <ul style="list-style-type: none">The manuscript must not be updated or replaced with the final published version.It must include the following notice: This is a non-final version of an article published in final form in [insert complete journal citation]. Please note: Lippincott policy prohibits posting articles or portions of articles on social networking websites.
