

How to submit a request for Wolters Kluwer Health journal content via RightsLink

All material published by Wolters Kluwer Health and its imprints is protected under international copyright and intellectual property laws, and we ask you to respect this when using our content.

We have partnered with the Copyright Clearance Center to meet your licensing needs. You can obtain permission to reuse our journal content quickly and easily directly from our website, <https://www.com/pages/journals.aspx>.

Please be aware that there may be fees involved when material held under copyright is reproduced or translated.

Please note that:

- Licenses and permissions cannot be granted verbally. Prior written consent from the copyright holder is required if you wish to reproduce any of our material.
- Wolters Kluwer Health may not be the copyright holder of the extract or work you wish to use, even if the work was originally published by us. Before requesting permission for a table, figure, or other illustration, please check the journal to be sure the image you wish to reproduce is not credited to another source. The citation may be listed under the figure or in a credit section of the publication.

Credit line/citation: A credit line must appear alongside any borrowed material:

1. For unmodified content: "Borrowed with permission from [author(s), article title, journal, volume number, issue number, inclusive pages and website URL to the journal page] ©Wolters Kluwer."
2. For borrowed content that has been modified with approval: "Adapted with permission from [author(s), article title, journal, volume number, issue number, inclusive pages and website URL to the journal page] ©Wolters Kluwer."

To submit a request to reuse Wolters Kluwer Health content, please follow the steps below:

1. Locate the article online that contains the content for which you are seeking permission.
 - Please note, due to the diverse collection of society and proprietary journals published by Wolters Kluwer, these permission links may not all be in the same location on the journal page or may look different depending on the journal from which you're requesting. Please refer to the screenshots below for examples:

2. Select the one of the above icons to open the RightsLink request form.
3. The following page will then be launched (turn off your pop-up blocker, if necessary):

Welcome to RightsLink

Wolters Kluwer Health, Inc. has partnered with Copyright Clearance Center's RightsLink service to offer a variety of options for reusing this content.

I would like to... ⓘ

If an article is Open Access and published under the Creative Commons Attribution License (CC BY) permission for reuse is not required. Before requesting permission, be sure to check the Copyright status of the source material and review which Creative Commons License applies to the publication, if any.

4. Select the description of how you will be using the content from the “I would like to...” drop-down menu.
5. Complete the additional questions.
 - The information given in the initial request is what will be printed on the license when issued. We can neither provide an accurate quote, nor a valid license if the fields are not filled out accurately. Please be sure to fill in all relevant information completely and accurately.

General Information about Permissions

Permission for Images, Figures, or Tables:

Wolters Kluwer Health can only authorize permissions for material for which it holds or manages copyright.

Before requesting permission for a table, figure, or other illustration, please check the journal to be sure the image you wish to reproduce is not credited to another source. The citation may be listed under the figure or in a credit section of the publication. You will need to secure permission to use any material copyrighted to another source directly from the source cited.

For more information contact the U.S. Copyright Office (<https://www.copyright.gov/>).

Permission for full article reuse:

For full article reprint request inquiries in the United States and Canada, please send your request to ReprintSolutions@WoltersKluwer.com.

For full article inquiries in other countries, please send your request to InternationalReprints@WoltersKluwer.com.
